Articles from British Journal of Midwifery and African Journal of Midwifery and Women's Health, which are also published by the Mark Allen Group, are available from a separate collection within the MAG Online Library called Intermid. The examples shown in this guide relate to Internurse. Intermid works in exactly the same way.

Accessing Internurse in LJMU's Electronic Library

1. Click on the Library link on the student home page on LJMU Web.
2. Click on Electronic Library on the Library page.
3. Click on Databases A-Z and login with your LJMU username@ljmu.ac.uk and password if a login page appears.
4. Scroll down to the entry for Internurse in the A-Z sequence and click on the link.

Searching Internurse for articles on a topic

Enter search words, phrases, authors or keywords into the search box on the Internurse home page, if you wish to run a search for articles in all the journals in the Internurse collection.

Click on Advanced search if you wish to refine your search. You could perhaps focus your search by adding a second box to incorporate another term.

It is also possible to limit your search to just one of the journals in the Internurse collection or to articles published within a particular date range.

The screenshot displays the Internurse search interface. It features two search boxes, each with a dropdown menu set to 'Anywhere' and a search icon (a circle with an 'x' for the first box, and a circle with a '+' for the second). Below the search boxes is a 'Collection' section with eight checkboxes: Internurse, Health Professionals, UK VET, Intered, MAH Complete, Intermid, Dental Complete, and MAH Core Collection. The 'Published in' section has a text input field containing 'e.g. British Journal of Midwifery'. The 'Publication Date' section has three radio button options: 'All dates' (selected), 'Last' (with a 'Select' dropdown), and 'Custom range' (with four dropdown menus for 'Month' and 'Year'). A blue 'Search' button is located in the bottom right corner.

Enter your search term or phrase in the search box and click the search icon.

To search for alternative terms simultaneously include OR (in upper case) between them, e.g. COPD OR “chronic obstructive pulmonary disease”. The inverted commas around the phrase help to ensure that Internurse searches for the term as a phrase.

To limit the search to a particular aspect of a topic, click on + to add another field and enter a further word or phrase, e.g. self-management

Search results are usually displayed in an order of relevance determined by Internurse. If you would rather see the most recent articles first, select the Date option next to SORT at the top of the search results page.

To read an article from the list of search results, click on its title.

Options in the column on the left of the results page allow you to refine your search in a number of potentially useful ways, e.g. Research Article under the Article Type heading. You can select more than one of these options if you wish.

Finding a specific article within Internurse

To read a specific article from one of the journals in the Internurse collection:

1. Click Journals A-Z on the toolbar at the top of the Internurse page.
2. Scroll down the list of titles and click on the one in which the article you want was published.
3. Click on Archive on the journal’s home page. Click on the year and then on the issue you need, to display a list of the articles within it.
4. Finally click on the Full text, PDF or PDF PLUS link under the details of the article you want to open it.

Accessing Intermid

Intermid contains articles from

British Journal of Midwifery V.1, 1993 onwards

and

African Journal of Midwifery V.1, 2007 onwards

and works in exactly the same way as Internurse.
